- Minimising pollution.

To achieve these goals, we:

- Ensure that environmental considerations are always part of our decision-making processes;
- Continuously monitor and review our environmental performance and practices;
- Provide resources to meet our environmental obligations;
- Respond promptly and appropriately to any negative environmental impact that may result from our activities;
- Implement the principles of refuse, reduce, reuse and recycle;
- Educate our members and contractors in environmental protection techniques; and
- Continuously research environmental management techniques, waste management initiatives, industry codes and best practice initiatives and incorporate them into our own procedures where appropriate.

The Society values the contribution of all its members to its environment programmes and initiatives. Excellence in environmental stewardship can only be achieved through the active participation and co operation of every level of the Society, the committee, members and contractors.
